Soon we must come to the Night, With the Day of our toiling done, A step-and the waning light Dies with the fading sun. Only a little way,

And then, where the Twilight creeps, The dreamer has known his day, And the soul of the dreamer sleeps

Soon we must come to the Night,

For the Dawn and the Noon move by, And the deep dusk wheels in flight To the gray of a starless sky. Only a step-and then A breath-and over the way We leave no shadow again On the walls of another day.

What if the Game's end comes Even amid one's prime-Taps from the fading drums Blown by the winds of time? There are the vague regrets As the wild years rush in flight, But the crowded Inn forgets Its lodgers for the night.

Princeton and Chicago

Princeton, facing Chicago again, has less chance to win than the Tigers had a year ago. And Chicago won that game, 9 to 0.

Princeton last fall was thrown against Stagg's team without Lourie and Garrity, but Keck, Wittmer and others were present who will be missed.

In the mean while Chicago is about as strong as ever, with a big line and a brace of hard-driving backs. Stagg returned far more seasoned talent than Roper

The Quality of Huggins

"After all this talk back and forth," comments I. P. H., "what about Miller Huggins as a manager? How does he rank with most of the good ones-such as Mc-Graw, Speaker, Moran, Cobb, etc.?"

Huggins knows baseball. He has his share of shrewdness and good judgment. His chief deficit is in the qualities of inspirational leadership. Here he is back of such leaders as McGraw, Robinson, Speaker, Moran, Gleason and Cobb.

The same can be said of Harvard and Dartmouth, who resume an exchange of punts after several seasons of chilly bowing as they passed.

Harvard should win, but no Harvard man takes anything for granted when the Hanover onslaught falls upon Cambridge.

Yale will have to show more against the Army than she did against Iowa to win, but as this will be her fell heir to, so Stagg at home seems to be upon the sixth game of the season with Brown, Princeton and Harvard coming along, the Blue may need all the impetus it can pick up.

New Material Coming Along Shoula Aid Huggins in Plugging Weak Spots; American League Champions Will Retain Their Popularity

By W. B. Hanna

Much of the recrimination now being hurled at the Yankees for their poor showing against the Giants in the world's series will be forgotten by next spring. Next season will be another season, and if the Yanks play good ball then the patronage will continue to be big and friendly. The Yankees have a strong hold on the people of this town The Giants have seen years when they, too, made showings in world's series just as poor. The Athletics used to eat them up regularly-when the Giants didn't play as well as the Yankees did this time-but that didn't hurt their popularity the next year. Fans aren't that foolish or Joe Beckett. Yet the Senegalese are supposed to be a crime to lose. Let us not forget that the Yankees, vanquished by a better team, weren't entirely suplne and that amid all the scolding a kindly word and a little credit may not be amiss. They haven't done anything unpardonable or met treatment other good teams haven't met before, and it must not be forgotten that they made every game with the Glants a hard one and several times came from behind.

I a loser. In some quarters it appears to be a crime to lose. Let us not forget that the Yankees, vanquished by a better team, weren't entirely suplne and that amid all the scolding a kindly word and a little credit may not be amiss. They haven't done anything unpardonable or met treatment other good teams haven't met before, and it must not be forgotten that they made every game with the Glants a hard one and several times came from behind.

Still, the Yankees found out in this world's series that they need strengthening, and they will try to get it. The club has in mind strengthening at second base, in center field, in the box and behind the bat.

Groh superior to Dugan by a wide margin, especially at bat and in timely feats.

club has in mind strengthening at second base, in center field, in the box and behind the bat.

Bengough to Join Club

Wally Schang will be supported by an additional catcher in the person of Bengough, of Buffalo, the best International League backstop, it is said. A southpaw pitcher is needed, and the club will have one in Jakie May, who has been with Vernon since he was with the Cardinals. He has been a success on the West Coast. The Yank sees wouldn't mind having Rube Benton, former Giant southpaw, who won twenty-five games for St. Paul this year. Neither would the Giants, but it is doubtful if either can get him from Mike Kelly.

Just how the Yanks will strengthen second base and center field isn't known yet, but an earnest effort will be made to do so. A substitute for Everett Scott is sought, though the Yanks have a first-class utility in fielder in Mike McNally. No fault is found with Scott. He was afflicted with boils during the world's series, which, doubtless, affected his work. Ruth will have to play better ball than this year to earn his pay. At that, he played splendidly on the last Western trip. Good men before him have had bad spells, and I don't think he's passe, if he doean't want to be.

The Giants, as they stand, will be hard to beat next year, very hard, and probably will be stronger than this year. But other National League teams aren't acknowledging defeat and aren't in the least awe of the Giants. The familiarity of competitive association has not bred fear, even if it has not bred amiliarity of competitive association has not bred fear, even if it has not bred contempt. The Reds and Cardinals and Pirates don't acknowledge that the Giants for next year have anything on them. A lot may happen in a year, even extending to the world's series.

Now that the Giants and Yankees Malone, Tommy Robson, "yean E have had it out segin we know here in." have had it out again, we know how in-dividuals compared. Previous "dope" was guesswork and, as usual in such cases, of little value. But as to what

Some people sem to have no use jump. If Klem said that, it's ridicuhatever for a loser—just because he's lous, for American League umpires, who are fully as competent as Klem, would have noticed it.

Frisch far better than Ward, far more valuable. Brilliant as were Bancroft and Groh. Bancroft considerably better than Scott, who was suffering with boils and didn't come up to expectations. Didn't cover the ground Bancroft did.

Tailoring's New Era

Where is the custom tailor of yesterday?-The individual who cut and sewed in his own little shop?

Most every custom tailor of today is something of on organization. We are years ahead in the spplication of modern organization methods. The result has changed neither tailors nor their art. But it has changed costs. Suits and overcoats tailored to your order,-up to $80.
